BUILDING HISTORY

- Originally constructed in 1896, remodeled in 1980's. The building features classic revival architecture with historic features throughout
- Original location of Marston Family Department Store; operated at this location until 1912, the building had various retailers and residents until being converted to office space in the 1980's
- The building's architect, William Templeton Johnson, also designed The Hotel Del Coronado and The La Valencia Hotel in La Jolla
- The Marston Building history can be found throughout the building with many historic photos, an open atrium, a cage-style elevator, high ceilings, and detailed finishes

John Marston

Marston moved to San Diego in 1870 when the population was just 2,300. John parlayed his early experience as a bellman at the Horton Hotel to becoming a partner and eventual owner of a general store in 1872. After years of success in business and being Secretary of San Diego's Chamber of Commerce, John decided to construct a building for a flagship store. Mr. Marston enjoyed years of success in downtown San Diego. He is known as "San Diego's First Citizen" due to founding the local YMCA, and spearheading the development of Balboa Park. His legacy is defined as an integral founder of San Diego Business and a major proponent of the beautification San Diego.
